City Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday

Street Department In Charge of Collecting Trash

Today dawned clear, bright and warmer, which indicated that there will be fine weather for the Harrisburg Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Days tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

Most of the citizenry realize that the Harrisburg city council wants to eliminate any possibility of the latter, if possible.

Regarding the clean-up phase, the Harrisburg city street department has taken charge of the pick-up of the debris that will be collected. People are urged to do their cleaning up on Tuesday, the first day of the drive, with trucks picking up the stuff on Wednesday and Thursday.

William "Cookie" Owen, superintendent of the Harrisburg street and alley department, today urged everybody to have their debris at the curb or side of the street where passing trucks can see it and pick it up.

He said it should be in boxes or other containers that will not be wanted so that the workers can throw box and all into the trucks.

Mr. Owen said he had lined up about seven trucks so far, including the two street department trucks, but that he could use a few more. A number of helpers also will be needed for the work on Wednesday and Thursday.

He said that trucks and volunteer workers should be at the Harrisburg city hall at 8 a. m. Wednesday, that he would have a zone plan worked out for assignments.

Travelers Like Neat Towns

At the April 5 city council meeting Mayor Claud Gibbons suggested a Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Day and the council agreed with April 1, 2 and 3.

"Nothing makes a traveler want to go somewhere else faster than a town that looks shabby and generally run down," Richard Waverly Poston of Southern Illinois University said in an article, "Democracy Is You."

"People are likely to be drawn to places where buildings are neat and kept up, where there are parks, clean lawns, and landscaping. Yet thousands of communities are dingy in appearance and there seems to be little pride or effort on the part of the people to change. Certainly the physical appearance of a community will have an important bearing on possible development and the kind of life that is found in the area."

All three will receive cash prizes from the Auxiliary, to be awarded on honors day at the high school, and the first place winner will receive, also, the essay contest medal and his essay will be entered in the state contest, where it will be considered as an entry for the national contest, only the first place winner in each case being eligible to go on to the next higher contest.

The Illinois department awards are, $150, $100, $50, $25, and five awards of $5 each. The top national prize is one thousand dollars and a gold medal, and prizes of $500, $250, and $100 each with a gold medal, and ten awards of ten dollars each, and ten awards of five dollars each.

This contest is held annually by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the VFW on a national scale and all high school students are eligible to write in it. Mrs. Florence Hancock, local essay chairman, is anxious to have wider participation in this worthy effort. It is one of the avowed purposes of the national organization to instruct the youth of the land in patriotism, and this contest is a principal activity of the local auxiliary along this line. The subjects chosen are always timely and patriotic in nature, and even when Harrisburg does not produce a state or national winner, these women feel that in this effort, they are helping to carry out a worthwhile program in reaching so many young people.

The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Aaron, and Rev. Chas. Scott of the Nazarene church. The Auxiliary expressed thanks for their service.

Russia Halts Nuclear Tests; No Assurances by Action, U. S. Says

Statement Is Approved by Ike and Dulles

State Department Sees Move to Embarrass U. S.

WASHINGTON (UP)— The United States today discounted Russia's decision to halt temporarily its nuclear tests, without waiting for international agreement. The State Department said Russia's action offered the world no assurance against cheating on a test ban.

The department said Russia's unilateral but temporary ban "can be evaded in secrecy and altered at will."

It said the free world should not give up its collective capacity to defend itself merely in exchange for a Soviet promise.

A statement issued by the State Department and approved by President Eisenhower called on Russia to negotiate on disarmament thru the United Nations and to stop flouting the world organization.

The Kremlin's move, coming immediately after completion of Russia's latest series of Siberian nuclear tests, was seen by officials here as a move to embarrass the United States, which plans a series of H-bomb and other nuclear tests in the Pacific this spring and summer.

A State Department spokesman said Saturday, in response to a Soviet protest against holding the American tests in a U. N. trust territory, that this country intends to go ahead with them. The department publicly rejected each point in the Soviet note.

There was no reference to the forthcoming U. S. tests in today's State Department statement.

It was prepared in advance and read to reporters about an hour after Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko announced in Moscow Russia's decision temporarily to halt all nuclear weapons testing.

Three Dead in Million Dollar Blast in Texas

TEXAS CITY, Texas (UP)— Three men died in a chemical plant unit that exploded Sunday, the day before it was to have been closed for repairs.

The three men inside the two-story brick building were control board operators. Today the building was to have undergone repairs and there would have been 100 men in it, officials of the Union Carbide Co., a division of Carbide Chemicals Corp., said.

Damage was estimated at over a million dollars The blast, which shook buildings 12 miles away at Galveston, took place three miles from the harbor where explosions fires and a tidal wave killed some 560 persons in 1947.

Liquid oxygen and liquid nitrogen were made in the building for use in producing polyethelene, a plastic.

The explosion was believed to have occurred in a cracking unit.

The three men died instantly and their bodies were recovered by more than 200 rescue workers who dug through the rubble.

The victims were S. B. Crider, 39, Larmarque, father of five children, R. E. Stoner, 35, Texas City, and Horace F. Smith, 37, Houston.

Ike Vetoes Farm Bill

President Defends Benson; Measure Sought to Freeze Price Supports

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower today vetoed a bill to freeze farm price supports and acreage allotments at last year's levels.

The bill, strongly endorsed by many farm state Republican and Democratic members of Congress, was an attempt to block cutbacks ordered and planned by Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson.

Supporters of the measure have conceded they do not have the votes needed to override the President's veto. A two-thirds majority in both houses is necessary to override a veto.

The bill sought to freeze all 1958 price supports and 1959 planting allotments at not less than 1957 levels. This would have reversed cuts ordered by Benson for nine farm commodities, including dairy products, wheat, rice, beans and several feed grains. It also would have prevented 1959 acreage cuts for cotton and rice.

List Bill's Consequences

"Improvements have been made in farm legislation in recent years," he said. "The keys to these improvements have been expansion of markets and greater opportunity for our farm people to exercise their own sound judgment."

He proposed to further these aims with a five-point program of his own. He said many farm problems could be alleviated if Congress acted on the proposals which he set forth in his special farm message to Congress last Jan. 16.

The President said the vetoed bill would have had "such consequences as these":

"1. It would pile up more farm products in government warehouses.

"2. It would restrict the growth of markets.

"3. It would postpone the day when agriculture can be released from the straight-jacket of controls.

"4. It would by-pass the problems of the small operator who produces so little for sale that price supports have scant meaning.

"5. It would hold up the needed transition to modern parity and would in fact disregard the parity principle.

"6. It would be unfair to those

Proposal for Ban Announced By Gromyko

Action Follows Completion of Tests in Siberia

MOSCOW (UP) — Russia today imposed a halt to its tests of "all form of nuclear weapons."

The ban was proposed before the Supreme Soviet by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

But if the United States, Britain and other nuclear powers fail to take a similar step, the Soviet Union said it "naturally" would have to reconsider the action in "the interests of its security."

"The Council of Ministers proposes that as a first step the Soviet Union unilaterally stop tests of all forms of nuclear weapons," Gromyko said.

He did not mention a date when the proposed ban should take effect.

Announces New Cabinet

The Soviet move comes at a time when the Russians are reported to have completed the latest in a series of nuclear and thermonuclear weapons tests in their Siberian and Arctic testing grounds and just before the United States is scheduled to start a new test series of its own at Eniwetok in the Pacific.

The foreign minister put forward the dramatic proposal of Nikita Khrushchev's new cabinet after a preamble in which he charged Russia was the only one of the three atomic powers ready to agree on a ban.

It came on the same day that new Premier Khrushchev presented his cabinet list to the Supreme Soviet. This list named former Premier Nikolai Bulganin to the relatively unimportant post of president of the state bank and promoted Khrushchev protege F. R. Koslov to the rank of first deputy premier.

Gromyko said the West was trying — by its attempt to make "clean" bombs — to divert attention from the main problem: The choice between peace and war.

Calls It "Classical Step"

"There are some people in the United States who think atom and H-bombs are necessary to prevent war and they are trying to make it seem that atomic bombs are for the good of the people," he said.

"This construction is alien to the interests of peace and mankind."

It was assumed the Soviet ban would take effect from the moment the Supreme Soviet gave its approval.

Gromyko did not set a time limit on how long the ban would last.

"We realize that an ending of tests does not yet avert the danger of war," he said.

The foreign minister described the Soviet gesture as a "classical step" towards relaxing international tension.

"If the test ban turns out to be a cold shower for the hot heads of NATO, then that alone is a good point," he said.

Gromyko said it was the chief aim of Russia "to reach an agreement with other powers on an unconditional ban on all types of atomic and hydrogen weapons, the ending of their production and complete destruction of existing stocks with appropriate control."

Blames U. S. Economy

But he said Russia—"regrettably"—was the only country ready to sign such an agreement without delay."

"The governments of the U. S. A. and Great Britain are still not showing any readiness to agree to this, although such steps by the three powers who have created nuclear weapons would not undoubtedly be received with gratitude by all mankind," Gromyko said.

"One cannot fail to perceive that some leaders in the West, particularly in the U. S. A., see in the stopping of atomic weapons tests a danger to the economies of Western countries.

"Any danger to the Western economies lies not in the stopping of nuclear tests or an end to the armaments race, but in the militarization at present gripping the whole of the economies of countries belonging to the Atlantic bloc."

"Lemme Have a Crack at It"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Ike to talk to business leaders on slump; feels buying by public would curb recession; supersecrecy, of sorts, holds up Clearance of Air Force boss's routine speech.

* * *

WASHINGTON —The President believes the business slump can be cured by bringing business leaders in for a series of White House dinners, just as he buttered up congressmen at private intimate breakfasts and luncheons in the past. He plans to turn on the old Eisenhower charm, persuade businessmen to help restore public confidence. He also believes that what it takes to cure the slumping economy is to persuade the public to start shopping again.

Though Ike made some auto buyers hold off buying by talking about tax cuts, he may be right on the above points because:

1. There is a lot of money in the banks. People have been watching their savings accounts, worried about the future.

2. There's been a semi-sitdown strike among some big business leaders, especially in the steel industry. More than anything else they want a tax cut and believe if they hold out long enough they can panic congress into such a cut.

Ike has told his staff he hopes to get suggestions from businessmen at White House dinners.

SUPER-SUPER-SECRECY

The Air Force's big bomber boss, Lieut. Gen. Tom Power, had so much trouble getting a routine speech cleared through the Pentagon the other day that his press aide, Col. A. A. Arnhym, sent him the following memo:

"In view of the difficulties encountered in obtaining clearance for your talk next week, we have requested headquarters (USAF) to secure authorization for you to substitute, if necessary, the following statement:

"Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard

"To get her poor dog a bone.

"But when she got there, the cupboard was bare,

"And so her poor dog got none.

"I regret to advise you that we could not get this statement cleared although we pointed out that it was quoted verbatim from a collection of similar nonpolitical pronouncements published originally by one John Newberry in 1760 and should, therefore, be considered compromised and known to the Soviet government.

"The specific objections on the part of the various agencies with which the proposed statement was coordinated," continued the memo, are as follows:

"Headquarters USAF: 'Pending investigation of the author's background and sources of information, the air staff considers the proposed statement classified in accordance with AFR 205-1 as it reflects directly upon the war-making potential of this country.'

"Department of Defense: 'An inadvertent reference to canine animals made by former Secretary of Defense Charles Wilson in the course of an interview resulted in very unfavorable press reaction. For this reason, the proposed statement cannot be authorized unless all references to canine animals are deleted from the text.'

"Atomic Energy Commission: 'It is obvious that said statement is a thinly veiled reference to the effects of nuclear explosions on edible foods. Particularly objectionable is the facetious use of the term 'Old Mother Hubbard.' As Mount Hubbard is located near the Alaska-Yukon border, the proposed statement could be interpreted to indicate that an atomic installation is planned at that strategically located site.'

"State Department: 'The proposed statement reflects unfavorably upon our current economic situation and could therefore, raise serious doubts in the minds of our allies as to our capability of meeting existing obligations for foreign aid.'

"Headquarters USAF, in transmitting these comments, suggested a modified version of the proposed statement which represents an acceptable compromise. The USAF version reads as follows: 'I have been authorized to announce that an elderly lady, desirous of implementing applicable regulations for the feeding of household pets, failed to contact the supermarket at the appropriate time and, as a result, exeprienced certain logistic deficiencies the exact nature of which is classified'."

CAUTIOUS SHERMAN

Assistant President Sherman Adams has developed cold feet regarding the Eric Johnston program to sell foreign aid, has ordered Johnston to confine his efforts to civic rallies and ladies' luncheons. He must keep away from Capitol Hill.

Originally the President had requested Johnston to help sell the foreign aid program to Congress and actually gave him White House funds to stage a big rally featuring Harry Truman, Adlai Stevenson, Vice President Nixon, and Ike himself, to boost foreign aid. This, however, aroused Congressman Passman of Louisiana, cantankerous chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign aid. He notified the White House that he didn't want Johnston's group meddling on Capitol Hill, which caused cautious Sherman Adams to back away. He instructed Johnston not to go near Congress. Probable results: A big cut in the foreign aid appropriation that Ike wants so badly.

MAILBAG

Ed Reid, Montgomery, Ala. — There are no accurate figures on the cost of the White House under Eisenhower and under Truman. Eisenhower junked the yacht Williamsburg but used a new yacht, the Barbara Ann, to go to the golf course at Newport, R. I., last summer. The White House claimed it cost only seven cents a mile to operate the yacht. Roughly, it cost about a thousand dollars a day to support Eisenhower and staff in Rhode Island, excluding the cost of the Barbara Ann and the private plane which shuttled back and forth between Newport and Washington. Feeding of the presidential staff, secret service and the Signal Corps which operates the telegraph system for the President was about $650 a day. The White House staff has doubled under Eisenhower compared with Truman. Truman used civilians to operate his communications room. Eisenhower uses the Signal Corps and it takes twice as many signal corpsmen as civilians.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield has flooded Congress with fancy brochures, showing colorful pictures of modern new post offices which have been built across the country. The brochure declares bluntly that the federal contribution toward building 12,000 new post offices and modernizing some old ones "would come from the proposed increase in first-class letter rate on out-of-town mail to five cents an ounce, now being considered by the Congress." . . . Summerfield could not make it more clear that congressmen must vote for the five-cent stamp if they want to get new post offices for their home districts.

More Funds for County Soil Bank

Edgar V. Thompson, chairman of the Saline County ASC committee, reports that additional money has been received, and it will now be possible for most farmers on the "waiting list" to complete agreements for the 1958 Corn Acreage Reserve Program.

This means that approximately 290 farmers in Saline county will be notified within the next few days that they can come to the County ASC office and execute an acreage reserve agreement. B R. Gholson, office manager at city hall, Harrisburg, urges all producers to respond promptly to their notices.

If a "soil bank base" has not already been established for the farm, each applicant should be prepared to tell what crops were grown on each field in 1956 and 1957. It is also necessary at this time to locate and identify the fields (or parts of fields) which will be maintained as the acreage reserve area in 1958.

Mr. Thompson also announces a change in regulations which will now permit the county committee to accept applications from farmers who attempted to sign-up for the program before February 20, but for some reason beyond their control were prevented from doing so. This will generally apply to producers who actually called at the office during the sign-up period but because of lack of forms or some other circumstances were unable to actually file an agreement. Such producers may now make applications and, if funds are available, may yet have an agreement accepted. April 18, 1958, is the last date for such applications.

It now appears that approximately 4,780 acres of corn land in Saline county will be placed in the soil bank in 1958.

Pilot Dives Airliner with 58 Persons Aboard to Avoid Crash

NEW YORK (UP) — A National Airlines pilot dived his loaded passenger plane at 300 miles an hour Sunday to avoid a head-on collision with a smaller plane.

The DC-6B airliner was approaching New York on a flight from Florida with 58 persons aboard when Capt. Jack A. Guthrie saw the two-engine plane dead ahead.

He put his four-engine airliner into a steep, 100-foot dive and passed safely beneath the other plane, which was not identified.

A number of passengers were thrown from their seats amid flying coats, hats and small luggage. Eleven passengers were treated by an airport doctor for cuts, bruises and shock.

Guthrie apologized to the passengers over the plane's public address syste mimmediately after the jolting dive.

The pilot said he couldn't say how close the other plane was but "I saw it just in time to get out of the way."

Both Guthrie and Civil Aeronautics Authority officials at Idlewild Airport said there was no violation of flying rules in the head-on encounter and that no complaint or investigation would be made. CAA spokesmen explained that both planes were flying under visual flight rules—they could see the ground—and the airline pilot was free to pick his own altitude.

"There was no negligence on the part of the other pilot," said Guthrie. "It was just one of those things."

Funds Available to Encourage Teachers To Attend Health Education Workshop

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Two thousand dollars is available at Southern Illinois University to encourage teachers to attend a Health Education Workshop this summer, according to Dr. Deward K. Grissom, SIU associate professor of health education.

Dr. Grissom, who will direct the four-week event, said the workshop's co-sponsoring agencies are offering 20 stipends of $100 each to qualified persons.

Conducted for the first time last summer, the workshop is designed to improve the quality of health instruction in the state's public schools. Again this year four quarter hours of college credit will be allowed for the course which will be in session from 1 to 5 p. m. weekdays June 16 through July 11 in the SIU Agriculture Building.

Public school teachers with five years of service and SIU seniors and graduate students are eligible to apply for stipends, Dr. Grissom said. Stipends also may be offered to school and public health educators. Persons who attended last year's workshop as well as newcomers may submit applications, which should be sent to Dr. Grissom at Southern.

Among the workshop speakers will be Miss Floy Eugenia Whitehead, chairman of the Department of Nutrition at the State University of Iowa, and Dr Leonard M. Schuman, associate professor of epidemiology at the College of Medical Science at the University of Minnesota.

Main topics to be discussed are mental health, care of the body, nutrition, prevention of disease, and safety education.

Sponsoring the workshop with SIU are the State Department of Public Health, State Department of Public Welfare, Illinois Tuberculosis Association, Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Illinois Heart Association, and the National Founadtion for Infantile Paralysis.

About 2,500 production workers will be idled.

Woman School Bus Driver Back on Job After Dispute

ELBURN, Ill. (UP) — Mrs. Leonard Kubiak, 29, was back behind the wheel of her school bus today, a dispute with her young passengers and their parents cooled by spring breezes.

Board members of the Kaneland Community School District met Saturday to hear the protests of 17 parents who said Mrs. Kubiak put about 30 high school students off the bus Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Kubiak said the students were "unruly and noisy," so she stopped the bus and ordered them to start walking. Some of the students had a four-mile hike.

The board reprimanded Mrs. Kubiak, and then everyone concerned decided the matter was merely a case of spring fever. The parents promised to see that their children behaved in the future and Mrs. Kubiak admitted she probably was a victim of the season herself.

The woman school bus driver resumed her 100-mile route today in the Sugar Grove School District north of Aurora.

Spring Sparks Home Clean-Up, Paint-Up and Fix-Up Projects

As nature at long last breaks free from the icy grip of Old Man Winter and prepares to don her fresh new spring raiment, the homeowner suddenly feels an almost irresistible urge to spruce up his home and grounds.

So universal is this urge, that at this very moment, on every residential street in every city and town across the nation, homeowners are either planning or already launching their own individual Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up and Light-Up programs.

These refurbishing programs will range in scope all the way from a simple "let's-clean-up-the-place" operation to comprehensive attic-to-cellar modernization and remodeling projects.

Indeed, many ideas for the improvement of home and grounds are sparked by routine clean-up operations.

Property Improvements

A man raking the winter's accumulation of debris from his yard is inspired to touch up those bare spaces in his lawn or perhaps put in a new one altogether. This logically leads to thoughts of improving the landscaping with additional shrubs or trees or a colorful flower garden or border.

Often these improvements in the grounds make the home itself appear by contrast somewhat drab and weather-worn, calling out for a fresh coat of paint or even new siding or roofing to complete the picture of a well-groomed property.

A woman, busily engaged in her usual "spring house-cleaning," begins to look at her home with a newly critical eye. Things hitherto taken more or less for granted begin to loom large with new importance. Those scuffs and scars on the living-room floor, for instance, or that too-dark "closed in" look to the dining-room. Suddenly she has the impulse for a complete "change of scene" in this room or that, or maybe throughout the house.

Modernizing Projects

The kitchen or bathroom (or both) also come in for their share of critical re-appraisal at "clean-up" time. Often they are found to leave much to be desired on the counts of appearance or function, and their modernization becomes a moot topic for family discussion and action.

Lighting, too, gets attention now. This is not to be wondered at, as four out of five existing houses are said to be inadequately lighted.

Landscaping Hikes Value of Home

Landscaping and planting the home property is one of the first considerations in a home improvement program. Fifty million home gardeners this season will be planting trees and shrubs to make their home properties more liveable, more beautiful and more valuable, says the American Association of Nurserymen, with the jobs ranging in size from a few shrubs to complete landscaping programs.

An advantage of home improvement through landscaping is that the home-owner, if he ever wants to sell the property, will get a higher resale price. Well landscaped homes bring 15 to 20 per cent more in the real estate markets. In setting out to improve your property with landscaping, start with a well-conceived plan.

Study Location

First, study the location of your house and the slope of the ground. Look at the property as a whole not just house, or drive or yard.

Your planting for best effect must have unity, that is it must tie house, drive, walks and land together to make a pleasing picture.

Eventually you will want a planting around the foundation of the home to tie it to the ground in a natural way. Bare, stark walls are unsightly. In the foundation planting you will want low-growing shrubs and plants that will not grow above the first floor windows.

A tree at the most open corner of the home will be desirable for accent. In front of the foundation planting open lawn space is popular in order to present an unobstructed sweep of grass.

Frame the View

If you have a lovely open view from any location on the property do not plant anything but low-growing plants to set off the view. Tall shrubs and trees should only be planted to frame the view, not to block it.

Conversely, if you have an unsightly view, or need privacy where houses are close together, a screen planting of tall shrubs or trees should be made.

Sometimes one wishes a low line of demarcation between his property and the next. A living fence of roses or low shrubs may serve in that case to be admired by your neighbor as well as your own family.

BOILING OILSTONES

Drowns While Trying To Hang Himself

Bormann, a carpenter, rigged a noose on the branch of a tree on the bank of the Wester River Thursday. The branch broke and he fell into the water and drowned.

Paint Can Help Appearance Of Your Home

A little paint can give an old home a completely new look. With the use of the proper tones, a small room may be made to appear larger, a large room smaller, a dark room brighter.

Room too small? It will appear spacious when walls are painted in pastels or pale neutral tones. Pale blue, especially makes any room appear much larger.

Room too large? It will look smaller and feel more comfortable and friendly with walls painted a dark shade.

Room too dark? Try painting it with bright, light tones and see how much more cheerful it will look.

Ceiling too low? Use a color that is much paler than the walls (even a near white) and you can add inches to its visual height.

By painting two opposing walls of a square room a light shade and the other two a darker tone of the same color, you can give the room dramatic interest.

The colors in your home should be the ones that you enjoy living with. However you will usually be influenced by some shade which you already have . . . probably in a rug or draperies. The idea is to build your new color scheme around this existing shade.

When making the choice of color for a room, bear in mind its exposure. Rooms with warm exposures, southern for example, call for cool walls of green blue, or gray. Northern exposures, on the other hand, look their best when decorated in pinks, reds, yellows and other warm tones.

Even trim can make a big difference. A simple way to achieve a formal effect in a living room is the use of very light woodwork with dark walls.

PAINT TRAY IDEA

No need to clean paint trays if you use this tip. Line the tray beforehand with common brown wrapping paper. Pour your paint in and go ahead with the job. When finished, simply remove the paper from the tray. A little, easily-wiped-up oil is all that remains in the tray.

LADDER TIP

A simple way to prevent tools and hardware from rolling off the top platforms of household stepladders is to convert the platforms into handy tool trays by nailing strips of quarter round molding around the top edges.

CORD CARE

Rub plastic or rubber lamp cords with the end of a wax candle or a block of paraffin. This will prevent the cords from drying out and greatly lengthen their service life.

Connecticut's name comes from the Indian "Quonecktacut," meaning "long river."

Federal Funds for Hospital Construction May Be Hiked, Illinois Official Believes

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD (UP) — The chief of Illinois' Bureau of Hospitals expressed belief today that appropriations under a federal program for hospital construction from which Illinois has received 34 million dollars, may be increased as an economic "pump priming" device.

The program, under the Hill-Burton Act, has been in effect for 11 years.

But the administration plans to let the program expire after the next fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1960. And President Eisenhower in his budget recommended that federal appropriations under the law be cut from 121 million dollars for the current fiscal year to 75 million for the next fiscal year.

However, Jerome V. Ray chief of the state Public Health Department's Bureau of Hospitals said that in view of the economic downturn he expects the Hill-Burton program appropriations may be boosted as a "pump priming" measure.

Subcommittee Studies List

He said the appropriation may be restored to the 121-million dollar figure, or even higher

Ray said that the U. S. surgeon general and the American Hospital Assn. have asked each of the 48 states to submit a list of hospital construction projects that could get underway in the next six to 18 months of funds were available.

He said a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee has been discussing the states' replies with the surgeon general and that "it appears" that the subcommittee will give "full study and consideration" to increasing the 75 million dollars budgeted for the program.

Ray said Illinois has advised the surgeon general that projects costing about 60 or 70 million dollars could get underway in the state in the next two years.

More Requests Than Money

However, Illinois specifically has proposed that 11 projects could come under the program for the next fiscal year. The projects, ranging in size from 30 beds to 300, would cost a total of about 22 million dollars, of which about $6,700,000 would come from the federal government.

What the state actually gets depends on the amount of federal money available, and there are more applications under the program than there is federal money available.

The Hill-Burton program originally was to last 5 years, but then was extended to 10 and then to 12 years.

At first the state and federal governments and the local communities each contributed a third of the money for each project. Then six years ago the state contributions were discontinued and taken on by the local communities.

So far Illinois has constructed about 140 million dollars worth of hospitals and related facilities under the program, with federal contributions coming to about 34 million dollars and state contributions hitting 8 1-2 million.

How It Works in Illinois

In the current fiscal year, Illinois received about $3,700,000 in federal funds for a variety of projects including:

A 100-bbed general hospital at Arlington Heights; hospital additions at Silver Cross Hospital Joliet; St. James Hospital Chicago Heights; Resurrection Hospital, Chicago; Morris Hospital, Morris; St. Elizabeth Hospital Granite City; Little Company of Mary Hospital, Chicago; an addition to a nurses' dormitory at Provident Hospital, Chicago; and psychiatric additions to Loretto Hospital, and Presbyterian - St. Luke's Hospital, both at Chicago.

The program works in Illinois this way: The state advisory council on hospitals accepts applications from communities or hospitals desiring to come under the program in April and May each year. Then in June the council meets and reviews the applications and makes recommendations for allocation of the available federal funds.

Profit-making organizations are not eligible to come under the program.

Ray said the Hill-Burton program accounts for about one-third of all hospital construction in the country.

THE STORY: Detective Wintino continues his investigation of Rose Henderson's complaint that she has been followed and jostled by men hired by firms she is exposing in a magazine article.

X

I showed him my badge. "Detective Wintino, 201st Squad."

"A cop. Say, Miss Henderson done anything crooked?"

"No. She complained about some jerks annoying her." I took out my notebook. "What's your name? How long you been employed here?"

"Heitman. Teddy's the first name. Been here going on 14 years this August. What you writing me down for? I don't want no trouble."

"Relax, Mr. Heitman. Have a phone here?"

"Yes, sir."

"Here's my name and police phone number on this slip. Keep it handy. Next time anybody comes asking around about Miss Henderson before you tell them a thing, ask to see their credentials, write down their name and address. Even if they say they're police or government men ask for—"

"You'll get me into trouble."

"You'll get into trouble by talking too much. Know who you're talking to before you run your gums. I want you to do me a favor, phone me as soon as anybody asks about Miss Henderson. Leave your name if I'm not in and I'll call you back. Don't make a fuss about it but try to get the name of whoever asks about her, ask to see their credentials or badge, then phone me."

"Yes, sir," he said, clutching my card. "I never had no run-in with the police, never. I don't want no trouble. No, sir."

The street was empty so were the parked cars. Little ways up the block there was a tall guy of about 25 wearing dungarees and a shabby black leather jacket leaning against one of the buildings. What made me notice this joker was the crumpled wire coat hanger he was toying with in his right hand.

I slipped my badge on my belt as he glanced around like a ham actor, crossed the sidewalk to a Jaguar and shielding the hanger with his body, started working the wire into the rubber lining of the front window. He was less than 200 feet from me and having a rough time with the window.

I edged up toward him, ready to sprint if he saw me, but he was too busy and I was behind him and on his left side when I asked, "Lost your keys?"

* * *

He spun around, one of these jokers with eyes too large for his long thin face. He nodded, tried to smile as he said, "Yeah, misplaced them." Looking me over, he turned back to the window.

"How you going to start the car if you haven't any keys?"

"Get lost, buddy. Mind your business."

"I'm a police officer. Keep your hands in sight and face me."

He turned quickly, his narrow face frightened pale. I opened my coat with my right hand so he could see my badge, part of my shoulder holster. I told him, "Drop the hanger—do it slow and easy."

He dropped it.

"Turn around and place both your hands on top of the car. Now keep them there. And spread your feet."

He spread-eagled his big feet. He was sweating badly.

"You'd bust a car open to get a jacket you couldn't hock for more than few lousy bucks," I said, frisking him. He was clean. At least he had good taste, he was after a tweed sport coat I liked. "Don't move till I tell you or you'll get hurt." I got out my notebook, put down the time, the license number of the car, the nearest building address. Across the street I saw the excited face of a fat old lady at the window, then she disappeared. She was probably calling the police. I put my notebook away, told him, "Stay the way you are and don't try anything."

"Please give me a chance."

"A chance to do what bust into another car, give me more work making the rounds of the hock shops looking for a stolen jacket? Keep your trap shut and don't move."

* * *

A radio car turned into the street—fast. The old gal hadn't wasted a second. When the radio car stopped both cops came out on the run. They were a couple of middle-aged guys I knew only by sight. The first one asked, "What's up, Junior?"

"Caught this clown breaking into a car. One of you stay here and see if you can locate the owner of this foreign heap. The other take us up to the station."

One of the cops gave me a mock slam-salute. "I'll stay. Some car. Al, you ride them up and don't be all afternoon coming back for me—hot in this sun." He jabbed the punk in the ribs with his night stick. "You, get in the car and don't try anything stupid."

I picked up the coat hanger.

At the precinct house I took him right up to the squad room. Reed was there. I had the guy empty his pockets. An old wallet with one buck in it said his name was Henry Moorepark, that he lived on East Fourth Street. He said he was a dye worker, unemployed since last February, gave me the name and address of the last concern he'd worked for. Besides the wallet he had a single key, a plastic case with his Social Security card on one side, a snap of a petty-looking babe on the other.

Israel, Syria Clash on Shores Of Sea of Galilee

By United Press

Israel and Syria fought a 75 minute battle with tanks and mortars Sunday on the shores of the Sea of Galilee.

The fighting appeared to be symptomatic of the growing restlessness of the Middle East nations, with Soviet Russia expected to make a major new bid for Middle East oil when President Gamal Abdel Nasser visits Moscow next month.

In Cairo a United Arab Republic spokesman warned that Israel is planning aggression against Syria. Arab League Secretary General Abdel Khalek Hassouna warned that Israel might try to seize the divided city of Jerusalem from Jordan.

There was no official statement from Israel, which is concerned that Egypt and Syria might seek a land connection in the future.

A Syrian military spokesman said in Damascus two Syrians were killed and two wounded in the Israeli clash which ended when United Nations officials called a truce. He said the Israelis suffered "heavy losses." Israel said two Israelis were slightly wounded.

The clash took place in the Huleh Basin the central sector of the demilitarized border zone between Syria and Israel.

The clash was the sharpest since Syria united with Egypt last month. It was the first time in many months that tanks have been in action on the Israeli border.

Question Four Youths for Beating College Student

CHICAGO (AP)—Authorities today questioned four youths in the assault of a college student who was pulled from his car and beaten while returning from a date.

Screams from his date, a 16-year-old high school girl, brought Park District policeman James Delaney to Aronfeld's rescue. The youth suffered a cut eye.

Barton Auto Supply Burglarized Near Eldorado

The Barton Auto Supply Co. on Route 142 south of Eldorado was burglarized Friday night and Deputy Sheriff Charles Donelson said he was convinced the job was done by professionals.

The safe was expertly opened, he said, by persons who had to know just what they were doing. A heavy tool was used in opening the safe.

James Farkas, manager of the company, said more than $600 was taken from the safe. In addition, a quantity of merchandise was taken including a heavy duty socket set valued at more than $100, some adjustable wrenches, two batteries, pliers, channel locks and two heavy duty power hand drills.

Rescue Four Marooned Skiers

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Four skiers marooned in the high Sierra wilds were rescued today by a huge twin-motored Army helicopter which completed its mercy mission without a "hitch."

The H21 "Flying Banana" copter set down in Yosemite Valley shortly before 11 a. m. c. s. t.

One of the skiers, William Pope, 22, a Stanford University premedical student and son of a San Francisco architect, was carried from the copter on a stretcher. The other three, who had been caring for Pope since he became stricken with pneumonia last week, were able to walk from the craft.

The four were taken immediately to Lewis Memorial Hospital for a physical examination and treatment.

The students with Pope were Lenore Lamb, 21, Orinda, Calif.; Margaret Meyer, 21, Seattle, Wash.; and Mike Roberts, 21, Neenah, Wis. They appeared to be suffering from exhaustion.

The rescue scene was between towering Mt. Lyell, which is near the nation's only living glacier, and Rodgers Peak. Both snowclad peaks rose above 13,000 feet with the saddle area about 11,000 feet high.

UAW-Ford Wage Talks Begin

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Company's top negotiator said upon opening negotiations with the United Auto Workers today that if both sides "fulfill their responsibilities" the bargaining can bolster the auto industry and the nation's economy.

John S. Bugas, Ford vice president of industrial relations, made his statement at Ford-UAW 1958 contract negotiations opened.

Heading the union bargaining group of 20 were President Walter P. Reuther and Ford department director Ken Bannon. Tuesday, Reuther will join a Chrysler negotiation team of 14 in another opening of contract talks.

From Tuesday on, the UAW will be bargaining with all the big three until present contracts expire May 29-June 1, barring an unexpected early settlement with the industry giants. The UAW's first bargaining session was last week with General Motors and these talks will resume April 8.

Eisenhower Vetoes Farm Supports Freeze

winter wheat growers who signed up under the 1958 acreage reserve program with the understanding that price supports which had then been announced would be the effective rates."

Revise Basic Farm Law

The President said various separate but related actions are necessary under the five-point program which he said should be undertaken. He said some of these actions are the responsibility of Congress; some are administrative. He said some require legislation, while ample authority exists for others.

He proposed that:

1. The old basic farm law be revised and include some of the following changes he proposed in his January farm message:

—Authority to increase acreage allotments up to 50 per cent, and to widen the range within which price supports may be provided.

—Elimination of acreage allotments for corn, to permit farmers to plant according to their needs, with price supports to apply to all corn grown.

Enlarge Export Program

2. "When these necessary legislative changes have been made," 1959 acreage allotments would be established at levels as high or higher than those prevailing in 1958. Cotton and rice allotments "will be substantially above the levels which would otherwise prevail."

3. The special export program for surplus crops will be enlarged as soon as the new requested authorization is voted by Congress. He said that large stocks of wheat and other surplus staples "can alleviate hunger and need and should be so used."

4. Surplus dairy products acquired under the price support program will be used "outside the regular domestic commercial market." The President said butter, cheese and dry milk purchased by the government to support prices will be donated to school lunch programs, to charitable institutions, and to needy persons, and exported wherever possible. He said the proposed freeze of dairy price supports "would not be a useful step" but that the surplus disposal he outlined would "serve to bolster the market." He said "every constructive step available to us will be taken to increase the use of our wholesome dairy products."

5. The President said he will put into effect an export program for surplus cotton and corn and other feed grains. No legislation is needed, he added. Under this proposal, the surplus grains and cotton could be placed directly into the expert trade without going through the Commodity Credit Corp.

Well Treated by 'Comrades,' Turncoat Says

HONG KONG (AP)—Larance Sullivan, the first of three U. S. Negro turncoats who chose Communism in Korea to return to the Western world, told newsmen here he was well treated by his "comrades" in Red China.

"They treated me more than sufficient," Sullivan said soon after his arrival in this British colony Sunday.

He said he is satisfied that he learned all about the international situation while he was working as a lathe operator in an auto factory in Wuhan.

"I think the world is in a state of ardent stirring for peace," he said.

Sullivan is the ninth of 21 ex-GI's choosing to remain with their Red captors at the end of the Korean war who has since decided to return home. He has been dishonorably discharged from the U. S. Army.

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews was established in 1754. The first permanent type golf course in the United States, the St. Andrew Golf Club, was started as a six-hole course in 1888 at Yonkers, N.Y. Chicago is credited with having built the first 18-hole course in the United States.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D. D.
(Written for NEA Service)

Jesus entered the temple in Jerusalem and cast out the people who were buying and selling the merchandise of commercialized worship. He said "My house shall be called the house of prayer."

Yesterday there were many who thought of their churches as "houses of prayer." Many others entered their sanctuary with more thought of the show or duty of the occasion than they did of the prayers they were going to say to God.

This central purpose of the church must ever be remembered. We cannot overlook the fact that prayer gave Christ the strength to go through this last week of His life. He did not limit His prayer to the temple. He turned to His Father in the Garden of Gethsemane, also.

We must pray this week not only in our churches, but wherever we can go off into a secluded place to be alone with God.

Her mother, Mrs. William Osborne, told police she had left her daughter in the kitchen while she put her 14-month-old baby in a bedroom. The girl's screams brought her grandmother, Mrs. Etta Madison, into the kitchen where she found the child had turned on the mixer and caught her hair in it.

Donna was taken to Wood River Township Hospital where she was treated and released.

Report Pending Trade by Dodgers, Phillies; Braves Get Littlefield from Cubs

By United Press

The Los Angeles Dodgers, who apparently have given up all hope of luring Ed Bailey or Smoky Burgess away from the Cincinnati Redlegs, today looked to the Philadelphia Phillies for catching help.

General Manager Roy Hamey of the Phillies met with E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi, the Dodgers' vice president and general manager, during the weekend, thus lending support to reports of a pending trade between the two National League clubs.

Bavasi said there was "nothing right now" to report on negotiations with the Phillies, but very definitely did not rule out the possibility of a deal.

Games Washed Out

All six scheduled exhibition games in Florida were washed out Sunday, giving all hands except the general managers a day off.

The Milwaukee Braves purchased 32-year-old southpaw Dick Littlefield from the Chicago Cubs for "slightly over" the waiver price of $20,000. The world champions wanted another lefty because their only portsiders were veteran Warren Spahn and rookie Juan Pizzaro, a spring disappointment.

In Littlefield, the Braves get a bullpen worker who will be appearing with his 10th major league team. He had a 2-3 record last year with Chicago.

The Detroit Tigers completed a trade with the Cleveland Indians, acquiring infielder Milt Bolling and pitcher Vito Valentinetti for pitcher Pete Wojey and an estimated $20,000.

Meanwhile, Joe Cronin, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, huddled for two hours with Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators. The Red Sox, too, would like some catching help and the Senators are carrying four capable backstops — Clint Courtney, Lou Berberet, Ed Fitzgerald and rookie Steve Korcheck.

Tom Sheehan, veteran scout for the San Francisco Giants, showed up at Tampa to discuss more than the weather with Gabe Paul, the Redlegs' general manager. And at St. Petersburg, the Yankees may yet swing a deal with the Indians or Senators.

Eyes Pitchers

Dissatisfied with the springtime form of some of his pitchers, Casey Stengel would like to add either Ray Narleski of the Indians or Pete Ramos of the Senators to his staff before the bell rings for the new season.

While the Florida-based teams suffered through another rainy day, the sun shone bright in Arizona, where the Giants unloaded five home runs in downing the Indians, 12-10, and the Cubs edged the Orioles, 2-1, in 12 innings.

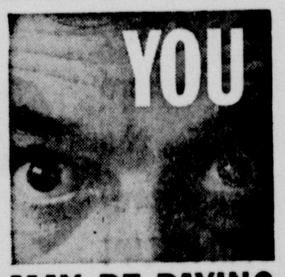

Celtics Even Series with Hawks

BOSTON (AP)—Near-perfect teamwork gave the Boston Celtics a rousing 136-112 victory over the St. Louis Hawks Sunday in their National Basketball Assn. championship series.

The two teams now move into the third game of the best-of-seven series Wednesday night at St. Louis tied at one game each.

Boston offset a tremendous one-man performance by Cliff Hagan of the Hawks, who sank 10 baskets and 17 of 18 foul attempts for 37 points.

Bob Cousy was high scorer for Boston with 25 points. Bill Sharman and Bill Russell had 22 points apiece.

Fraley Picks Pennant Winners

IN THE

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Well, now that the baseball season is over, who do you like in the World Series?

What brings me to this question, even before the pennant races get under way, is the apparent fact that they are already decided. This is the tenor of all the reportorial juice oozing from the grapefruit circuit.

And Fearless Fraley has to go along with those who predict that the New York Yankees and the Yankees of the National League, the Milwaukee Braves, are "in."

These two apparently are in a class by themselves. The Yankees usually do prove it. The Braves, off their world championship, have the faith which they lacked previously.

How the Races Appear

In this corner, the races shape up like this:

American League

. New York Yankees; 2. Chicago White Sox; 3, Detroit Tigers; 4, Boston Red Sox; 5, Cleveland Indians; 6, Baltimore Orioles; 7, Kansas City A's, and 8, Washington Senators.

National League

1. Milwaukee Braves; 2, St. Louis Cardinals; 3, Cincinnati Reds; 4, Los Angeles Dodgers; 5, Philadelphia Phillies; 6, Pittsburgh Pirates; 7, San Francisco Giants, and 8, Chicago Cubs.

The Yankees are, as usual, the Yankees. They are so "loaded" that Casey Stengel's problem is what to do with some of his young stars.

Pitching is Chicago's forte but the team lacks power and you don't win many games if you can't score any runs.

Billy Martin figures to lift the Tigers. Yet the pitching may not hold up and the club could be hurt fatally by any injuries.

The Red Sox have Ted Williams, infield problems and lack left handed pitching.

Cleveland's hopes depend greatly on Herb Score's comeback and the result of the operation on Bob Lemon's arm.

That takes care of the contenders. The Orioles are hopeful but their dreams looks like an anemic nightmare; the A's will discover that spirit is no substitute for talent and the Senators are still the Senators.

Gobs of Everything

In the National League, Milwaukee has gobs of everything, has strengthened and has that new belief which comes to a champion.

Cardinal pitching is a question and the club lacks outfield defense.

The Reds sacrificed power to improve their pitching and fell short in both departments.

The Dodgers' old pros will keep them respectable but the loss of Campanella is a killing blow.

Philadelphia may make a bid as last year, but it is doubtful.

After that you have the real also-rans. Pittsburgh lacks pitching; the Giants are "shooting for a pennant" and using blanks, while the Cubs have a poor outfield, poor power, poor pitching and fair defense.

In the series, I'll take the Yanks in six games.

Vic Wertz Breaks Ankle

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Vic Wertz, a hard luck guy who made a successful comeback after an attack of polio in 1955, was sidelined again today with a broken right ankle.

The 33-year-old Cleveland Indian first-baseman was sliding toward second base while trying to break up an attempted double play against the San Francisco Giants Sunday when his spikes dug into the ground and snapped the fibula just above the ankle.

General Manager Frank Lane and Manager Bobby Bragan said he would be put on the inactive list for at least 10 weeks.

The injury actually was a double one, involving both a dislocation and a fracture above that. Trainer Wally Bock said the dislocation might hamper him for some time to come since "there's always inflamation in those cases."

Club spokesmen agreed that Wertz' loss '-definitely hurts our hitting power." Wertz has a major league lifetime batting average of .279, doing his best, .304, with Detroit in 1949.

Indiana U. Track Coach to Highlight Clinic at SIU

Gordon Fisher

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Indiana University track coach Gordon Fisher will highlight the 10th annual Southern Illinois University Spring Coaching Clinic here Thursday, April 3.

Other speakers on the one-day program will be James (Pim) Goff, athletic director, Quincy College; Paul Hibbs, principal, Du Quoin high school; and three SIU staff members, Athletic Director Donald N. Boydston, trainer Robert Spackman, and baseball coach Glenn (Abe) Martin.

The one-day clinic, which will be held from 8:30 to 4:30 in the new SIU Agriculture Building, will be divided into two sections: baseball and track.

At the track session, Fisher will speak on "New Developments in the Shot and Discus," "Broad Jump," "Hurdles," and "Why the Four-Minute Mile Has Become Commonplace." Spackman will speak on "Prevention and Care of Track Injuries," while Boydston will talk on the "High Jump." There will be outdoor demonstrations if the weather permits.

On the baseball side, Goff will speak on "Pitching and Catching"; Martin, "Offensive and Defensive Drills"; Hibbs, "Infield and Outfield Play"; and Spackman, "Prevention and Care of Baseball Insjuries."

A varsity baseball game between SIU and Quincy College will highlight the baseball session.

Fisher, a former football and track coach at North Central College at Naperville, has led his Indiana track team to three Big Ten championships during the past 10 years. Two of his best-known performers, Greg Bell and Milt Campbell, are Olympic standouts.
